Experience

Verrochio Design | Boston, MA | February 2004 to February 2006

CEO/Senior Designer

Verrochio is a nickname for an artist that was thought to possess true vision and a mastery of his craft. That was ultimate goal for the company that I started. I managed projects for ten clients and worked with other companies and freelancers to create brands, web sites and advertisements. I handled everything from accounting to account management as well as developing all the design.

R+D Advertising/Marketing | Boston, MA | May 2000 to Feb. 2003

Multimedia Art Director

Regardless of my title, I contributed to everything designed by this agency from corporate brands and identity packages to CD ROMS and interactive web sites and print advertising. It was a great job while it lasted where I was involved in client presentations, concept development and of course as much production work as and college graduate would expect to handle. R+D folded and I moved on to working independently.

Gallery 5 North | Boston, MA | Oct. 1999 to Jan. 2000

Multimedia Intern

I was the web manager and flash developer for this small gallery in the Fort Point District of Boston. I helped with some gallery functions too.

Bell Atlantic | Middleton, MA | September 1996 to March 1998

Junior Designer

Originally I was in Graphic standards where I approved and created ads for the Yellow Pages. I was promoted to Creative Services where I was a production artist and junior designer. I created in promotional materials and concepts for the cover of the Yellow Pages.
