

When you heard the word "cancer," suddenly everything else became less important. You can't imagine life without him, after all, so nothing short of the best care will do.

Cancer Specialist Paul Musto, MD, co-chairs a multidisciplinary cancer care team at Quincy Medical Center. This group works hand-in-hand with leading specialists at Boston Medical Center to provide comprehensive cancer care.

Through our Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center, we bring together the resources of a teaching hospital with the expertise of local cancer specialists. So whatever care is ultimately needed, and wherever it may need to be administered, it's all focused here, where it's easiest for him and you.

Best of all, our Alliance assures that renowned specialists will be working with top local doctors, like his, to provide "the best" in every way.

You would go to the ends of the earth to get him great care. Luckily, you don't have to.
